Empowering Rural Girls Through Education, Health & Skills

The Seeds of Change: Gyan Kanya Shakti

In many corners of rural India, the spark of education in a girl's life is often dimmed too early. Traditional norms, economic hardship, and systemic neglect make it difficult for girls to stay in school—let alone thrive. Gyan Kanya Shakti (GKS) was born to rewrite this reality.

Initially conceived as a plan for 100 feeder schools, GKS evolved into a more sustainable and impactful initiative strengthening existing government-run girls' residential schools, known as Kasturba Gandhi Balika Vidyalayas (KGBVs). These schools became the fertile ground where potential could flourish.

What makes GKS unique is its 360-degree approach. From academics to emotional resilience, from digital learning to menstrual hygiene—GKS touches every part of a girl's life. It empowers not only the girl but the ecosystem around her families, communities, and institutions.

Why Kasturba Gandhi Balika Vidyalaya?

GKS program in Uttar Pradesh

The Kasturba Gandhi Balika Vidyalaya (KGBV) scheme, launched in 2004 by the Government of India, aims to ensure access to quality education for girls from disadvantaged communities primarily SC, ST, OBC, and minority groups through residential schools at the upper primary level. The scheme focuses on Educationally Backward Blocks (EBBs) and reserves 75% of seats for marginalized girls, with 25% for girls from below poverty line families.

Aligned with the vision of Gyan Kanya Shakti (GKS), KGBVs address critical gaps in girls' education by offering a safe, inclusive, and empowering residential learning environment. Both initiatives share the goal of enabling adolescent girls to break cycles of exclusion through education, especially in underserved regions of Bundelkhand like Chitrakoot, Mahoba, Banda, Hamirpur & Kaushambi of Uttar Pradesh, where GKS is actively working.

Our Approach

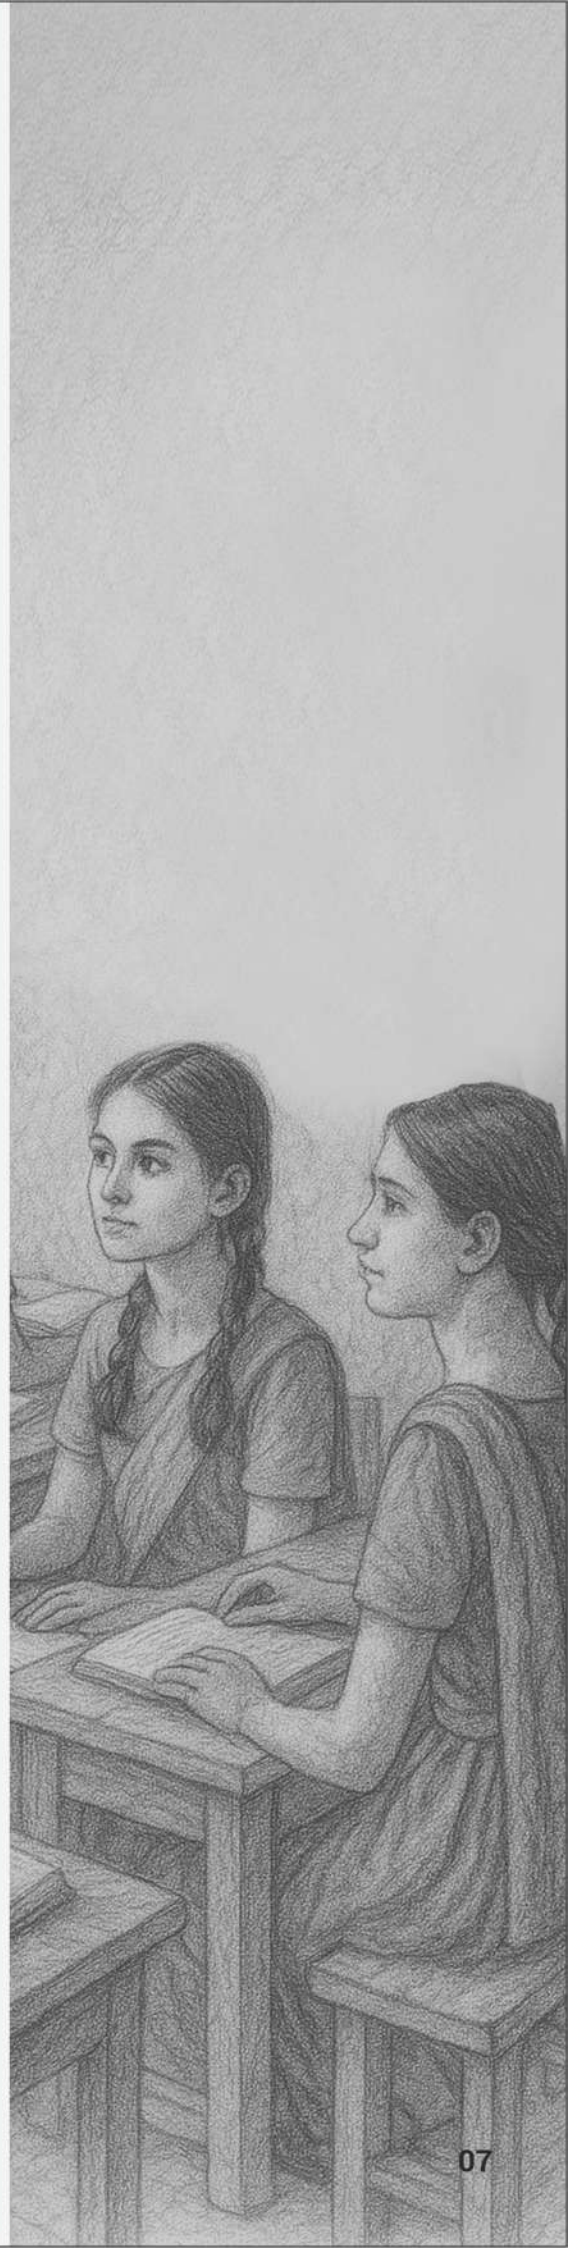

The GKS initiative begins with securing permissions from key authorities: the District Magistrate, Education Department, and Health Department. These permissions are crucial for the program's implementation, ensuring coordination and support from relevant governmental bodies. By obtaining approval from these entities, GKS can effectively proceed with its mission to empower girls through knowledge acquisition and holistic development.

Our Intervention

- Smart Class-based Education: Equipped with audio-visual tools, our smart classrooms focus on Foundational Literacy and Numeracy (FNL) with implementing partner Lotus Petal Foundation, addressing the specific learning needs of girls in grades 6 to 8.
- Health and Sanitation: We organize health camps and awareness sessions to ensure girls have access to essential healthcare services.
- Life Skills and Vocational Training: Our curriculum includes soft skills, vocational training, and personality development, empowering girls to thrive in their communities and the job market.
